As a provider of design services, this holistic view allows us to be the best partner possible as you approach the planning and design phase of your next justice facility. A fundamental component of our 360 Justice integrated platform, our design services are customized to support each community's unique circumstances, minimize the total cost of ownership, and maximize our client's return on investment.

At CGL, we have designed millions of square feet of corrections, detention, courthouses, and public safety facilities across the nation. Our structure allows us to call upon our depth of expertise from across the country in order to serve one common goal: to improve the justice system. As such, our design staff partners with our justice planners and look deeper into the system during the planning stages to shed light on the facility's needs. Together, they work tirelessly to uphold community traditions while benchmarking Owners against best practices nationwide. Our unique approach engages project stakeholders at a deeper level to understand pain points, ensuring your justice facility embodies the functional needs desired while inspiring a better tomorrow.

As you move through any delivery method and into the construction phase of the project, Owners can rest assured they have made a great choice in CGL. The following are just a few of the unique benefits offered to every client who engages with us during planning and design:
